CHAPTER XII.

Conward paused to speak to Irene before leaving the house. "I owe you my good wishes," he said. "And I give them most frankly, although perhaps with more difficulty than you suppose."

"You are very good, Mr. Conward," she acknowledged.

"I could not wish you anything but happiness," he returned. "And had I been so fortunate as Elden, in making your acquaintance first, I might have hoped to contribute to your happiness more directly than I can under the present circumstances." He was speaking in a low, sedulous tone, and his words sent the girl's blood rushing in a strange mixture of gratification and anger. The tribute he implied—that he himself would have been glad to have been her suitor—was skillfully planned to appeal to her vanity, and her finger was due to her success. She told herself she should not listen to such words; she should hate to hear such words. And yet she listened to them, and was not sure that she hated them. She could only say:

"You are very good, Mr. Conward."

He pressed her hand at the door, and again that strange mixture of emotions surged through her.

Conward was preceded by the business section of the town, well pleased with the evening's events. He found his way impeded by crowds in front of the newspaper offices. He had paid little attention to the progress of the war here, attributing it to the skillful publicity of interests connected with the manufacture of armaments. To the fact he had not believed that it was possible.

"Nobody wants to fight," he had argued. "his business is to maintain 'even' the armament people don't want to fight. All they want is to tighten more money out of the taxpayers of Europe." To Conward this explanation seemed very complete. It covered the whole ground and left nothing to be said.

But tonight he was aware of a reener tension in the crowd atmosphere. They were good-natured, sure, but sure, laughing and cheering and making miles of heavy wit; but they were in some way more tense than he had ever seen before. There was no fear of war; there was, rather, an adventurous spirit which seemed to fear that the affair would blow over, as had so many affairs in the past, and all the excitement go for nothing. That war, if it came to pass, could shake the one dreamed it would be a matter of a few weeks, a few months, at the most, until a thoroughly whipped Germany would retire behind the Rhine to plan ways of raising the indemnity which outraged civilization would demand.

Conward elbowed his way through the crowds, smiling in his superior knowledge, over their excitement. Newspapers must have headlines.

At his office Conward used a telephone. There he talked to a restaurant, where, after a few minutes, he was joined by a young woman. They took a table in a box. Supper was disposed of, and the young woman began to grow impatient.

"Well, you brought me here," she said, at last. "You've fed me, and you don't feed anybody, Conward, without a purpose. What's the consideration?"

"I'm putting off a little joke, and I want you to help me. You know Elden Dave Elden?"

"Sure. I've known him ever since that first put him out of business up in your rooms, ever so many years ago. He was too rural for that mixture."

"I want you to get him down to your place some night to be agreed upon—I'll fix the date later—and keep him there until I call for him, with his fiancee."

"Come here," she said, and there was a gleam in her voice. "Who is it? Elden, or the girl?"

"Never mind who it is," Conward returned. "I'm paying for it. Here's something on account, and if you make a good job of it I won't be stingy."

He handed her a bill, which she kissed and put in her purse. "I need the money, Conward, or I wouldn't take it."

This part of his trap set, Conward smiled at the opportunity to spring it. In the meantime he took Mrs. Hardy partially into his confidence. He allowed her to believe, however, that Elden's habits would stand correction and he had merely arranged to trap him in one of his favorite haunts. She was very much shocked and thought it was very dreadful, but of course she must see him.

But concerning another part of his program, Conward was even less frank with Mrs. Hardy. He was clever enough to know that he must observe certain precautions.

At length all his plans appeared to be complete. The city was in a tumult of excitement over the war, but for Conward's deeper interest centered in the plot he was hatching under the unsuspecting noses of Irene and Elden. If he could trap Dave the rest would be easy. If he failed in his he had another plan to give failure at least the appearance of success.

The fact that the matter was now at hand probably had an influence in speeding up the plot. Eve's thing was more high tension, powerful currents of thought were beating the machine along, unaccustomed chains, society itself was in a state of flux. If he were to strike at all let the blow fall at once.

IMPORTANT TOPICS TO BE COVERED AT FARMERS' INSTITUTES

Practical Men Seem to Speak During Meetings at Gans Station and Farmington.

Farmers' institute meetings, under the direction of W. R. Swearingen, county chairman, will be held at two places in Fayette county this year, as follows: Gans station, December 10 and 11, and Farmington, December 12 and 13.

The meetings will be addressed by M. H. McCollum of Farmington, Pa., a practical and successful farmer, who has wide experience in dairying, livestock and general farming; Professor A. D. Crowell, who is an agricultural instructor at the West Chester Normal school and has had a wide experience in this line of work. Professor Crowell will present the following subjects: Improving rural schools; agriculture for boys; culture, plant breeding; increasing the productivity of the soil; child study for parents and teachers; corn culture and crop breeding; and farm management. L. C. Tompkins of Elmington, Pa., who is practical agriculturist, specializes in dairying. He owns and operates a large farm in Zieglerville county. Mr. Tompkins comes well qualified to discuss all phases of the dairy industry. His topics include remodeling the old dairy barn, balanced rations, clean milk, farm butter making, selling dairy products and better cows. This county needs information on this important subject and every owner of livestock should attend these meetings.

Fayette county is a great industrial center, but interest in agricultural pursuits is not lacking. This county contains 3,818 farms which produced, this year, 326,800 bushels of wheat, 548,500 bushels of oats and 872,000 bushels of corn.

"Wide-awake farmers will not miss these meetings, as they are always looking for the new and better way of doing things on the farm. The speakers have been selected with special reference to meet conditions in Fayette county," declares County Farm Agent Sprinkle.

A Cheerful Recommendation.

"They should be in every traveling man's grip," writes Geo. Jenner, 416 Labor St., St. Antonio, Tex., of Foley's Caloric Tablets. "They are the best laxative I have taken and I cheerfully recommend them to anyone suffering with constipation or biliousness." They thoroughly cleanse the bowels, sweeten the stomach and benefit the liver. They correct indigestion, bad breath, bloating, gas, coated tongue and other results of sluggish bowels. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS REVIVED HERE

Norton, one of the directors of the former body, declared that if the chamber is to be a worth while body in the industrial development of the city it must be prepared to raise money to assist in bringing here industries seeking locations. It has been the experience of past chambers that somebody has to be ready to assist in the financial end. Previous chambers failed, he said, because they did not have sufficient free money. They could not provide sites or meet other requirements of prospective industries. The result was other communities got them. He referred to the Kelly-Springfield Tire company which has invested millions at Cumberland, Md. The opportunity came to Connelville but the city "couldn't touch it" because of lack of money. Another concern came here asking $20,000 to aid in its establishment. The money was not in sight. The company located near Youngstown, Ohio, where $100,000 was provided, and where it is now a thriving industry. "That is exactly what we will be up against today," Mr. Norton said. He added that others offer financial inducements and it is up to Connelville to do the same. He urged that the organizers of the chamber go into the movement with their eyes open.

Chairman Kurtz took exception to the view of Mr. Norton. The vision of the chamber, he said, should be that of an "original machine," not a money-getting one. He was of the opinion that if a movement were started now to get members and money it would meet with no response. He also assailed the "corporation" plan of house building. Any program, he said, that involves the investment of a million to a million and a half dollars is an impracticable one. It had better be an up-to-date, immediate, he criticized the assumption exhibited by city council to the chamber of commerce and declared that if the body is to be a success council should be "paid and parcel" of the chamber.

Attending the meeting were T. J. Hooper, John Duggan, P. J. Tormay, Rev. G. W. Buckner, S. Desmons, C. A. Crowley, G. L. Armstrong, D. M. Parkhill, H. E. Mason, J. E. Angie, F. S. Darr, A. M. URGES PEOPLE TO FIGHT CATARRH WITH SIMPLE HOME MADE REMEDY

Can Make Pint at Home and Costs Little, Says Leading Druggist of Covington, Ky., Who Has Made Special Study of Catarrh.

Says: Inflamed Nostrils Invite Influenza

People who say that catarrh is a disease not to be taken seriously are harshly rebuked by a Kentucky druggist who has for years been much interested in the growth of this loathsome, yet altogether too common disease.

He claims that the sore, tender, inflamed membrane of the nostrils and throat is a prolific breeding ground for germs—not only the germs of influenza, but many other kinds as well.

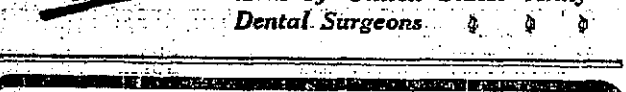

If people would only stop experimenting for two weeks and try a simple remedy made of Mentholized Arcline mixed with enough boiled water to make a full pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished. It's really no joke for people who don't know about this simple recipe to be constantly sniffing and sneezing, blowing and hawking, when all these obnoxious symptoms as well as the foul discharge can be made to disappear in a few days.

Ask for three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcline—that's all you need and after you have mixed it with enough boiled water to make a pint gargle the throat twice daily and sniff or spray some up the nostrils, as directed.

The tender nostrils will soon lose their soreness, heal up, and be clean and healthy.

Important Reminder: Just as soon as anyone in the family gets a cold in the head, check it at once with this same medicine.

Christmas Kerchiefs

Snowy white of finest linen from Ireland and France, embroidered in the Madiera Islands, trimmed with Armenian laces—the whole world seems to have joined in making the 1919 handkerchiefs the daintiest, prettiest ever, for many are imported from far off lands.

Delicate colors appear in the corner decorations on a number of styles and there are quite a few of colored silks.

In days of old, when knights were bold, ladies' fair were fain to bestow their handkerchief upon their favored warriors who carried it as a symbol of their sweethearts' love and trust, but, in those days it was just a tiny kerchief only a few inches square.

Nowadays, milady carries a much more practical handkerchief, although it can be as delicate and beautiful as she wishes.

Any knight of 1920 would be proud to wear over his heart these kerchiefs we are showing, if it were bestowed by his "Lady Fair."

Social Gossip

New Members Initiated. Liberty Circle No. 420, of the Protected Home circle, held its regular meeting Tuesday evening in Markell hall. A class of 23 was initiated and 15 candidates balloted upon. State Deputy W. S. Cockran of Altoona, gave a very interesting talk which was enjoyed by all present. Thirty members were present from Uniontown. Following the business meeting, an elaborate luncheon was served and a social hour held. Dancing and various games were the amusements.

Drill and Dance. Large and brilliant was the ball and card party given Tuesday night at the William Penn hotel, Pittsburg, by the Alumnae of Seton hall Academy, Greensburg. About two hundred couples attended. The decorations were unusually artistic, the large ballroom presenting a scene of rare beauty. During the evening the N.Y. and Marine Glee club, which is appearing at the Grand Opera house, gave their act in the ballroom for the entertainment of the guests. A buffet luncheon was served. Members of the alumnae from many out-of-town points attended. Dr. and Mrs. John Dixon, who latter being a patroness, attended from here.

CURED HIS RHEUMATISM!

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over 50 years ago. I like many others, I spent money freely for so-called cures and I have read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I could not believe it, but I could not sleep nights so I took a bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I could not hold a pen. But now I am again in active business and can walk with ease of spirit all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try to get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints by taking treatment supposed to drive Dr. Williams' Pink Pills out of your blood and body. It took me a lifetime of years to find out the truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of the rheumatism, other ailments and weakness. His strength from 'The Great Mystery' is now being distributed free by an authority who has devoted over twenty years in the scientific study of this trouble. It is not a cure, but a permanent cure. Send card by letter to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, 764 N. Street, Baltimore, Md. Send now, test you for yourself. It will not hurt you, but it will give you a chance to see if you can get rid of your rheumatism. All who send will receive a free return mail without any charge whatever." Adv.

His work is said to be as finished and of an high order of dramatic expression as are his innumerable portrayals of the villain type, in which roles he has starred and supported such well known stars as Theda Bara, Norma Talmadge and Clara Kimball Young.

"Love, Honor and (Y)" teaches a lesson that all will be the better for having learned. It shows the weakness of a young wife who has been misled by the flattery of the social set that lives for the brilliance of the
